The Condition of Austria. The Vienna Gazette calculates that as the result of the new military system adopted in Austria, the army will amount to 1,300,000 men, of whom 800,000 will be on the active list, and the residue in the first and second reserves. The present population of Austria numbers about $2,500,000 souls, of which 16,000,000 are males, and of these proba-bly about a half are between the ages of sixteen and sixty. But of this number, 8,000,000 adult men under sixty years of age, about one-fourth would be incapacitated for military service. There are, therefore, 6,000,000 men to furnish an active army of 500,000, which is pore than one seventh of all the available men, and a larger proportion is still of the men who could really be obtained stitute the laboring classes of the com-A correspondent of the London Times,
